

Temple and Moo

AN ORGANIC TALE

Temple and Moo

AN ORGANIC TALE

By Billy Surf Martin
Illustrated by Jennifer Martin

Copyright © 2009 by Billy Surf Martin

Cover design by Jennifer Martin

Book design by Jennifer Martin

All rights reserved.

No part of this book may be reproduced in any form or by any electronic or mechanical means including information storage and retrieval systems, without permission in writing from the author.

Sticky Ear Publishing www.stickyyear.com

Printed in the United States of America

First Printing: October 2009

ISBN- 978-1449565602

For our little people
Carrington, Ellie, Finn and Deacon

It's quite a silly story see, that many say is true. There was a squirrel named Temple who had a friend called Moo.

They were the smartest best of friends, the cutest pair you'll meet. They'll make you think so differently about the things you eat.

Temple loved to run with Moo and race down to the lake. They picnicked by the waterside on berries, nuts and cake.

The food was all so tasty, as pure as could be found. Moo would eat it up so fast she'd make a funny sound.

How fun it was to laugh and run, they did it every day. To sing and play under the sun and pass the time away.

One day they wandered down the road to see what they could find.
Perhaps they'd move the picnic
there, if just for this one time.

They found a spot that had a lake, cake, berries and nuts too, then spent some time gathering food as they'd always do.

They drank the water and ate the food, how nice to have a change! But something's odd about this farm, what happened next was strange.

An airplane flew above the fields and sprayed the crops below. Back home the fruits and vegetables did not need help to grow.

“To keep the bugs off of the plants,” they heard the farmer say. “It’s safe for people, squirrels and cows,” and then he walked away.

They stayed there for a day at first, a month went by then four. Moo and Temple ran so much slower than before.

Tired and sick their bodies felt, something was not right. They packed their things, went up the road and headed home that night.

Days went by and once again they ran under the sun, eating berries, nuts and cake, feeling better was such fun!

What made their bodies sick and tired, so that they could not play? Moo and Temple realized it must have been that spray.

Now you know the food you eat affects just how you feel. How will you choose the berries, nuts and cake before each meal?

Moo and Temple got a job at the market by the lake, putting stickers on the organic berries, nuts and cake.

The End

Want more Temple and Moo? Go to stickyear.com (ask your parents first).